...has played in identifying business issues on the ground and recommending feasible and impactful solutions to the government. She also praised the donations and other charitable actions of all the AmCham member companies that have helped and been close to the Albanian community during this time of crisis.

Members and Ambassador Kim spoke directly about the challenges they have had to overcome or are still facing. The meeting also served as a platform to discuss ideas on how to best reopen the economy while mitigating health risks.

The Board members and attending CEOs expressed their concerns about the current economic situation and pointed out that additional government relief is necessary to curb the present and anticipated adverse effects on their respective businesses and industries. Other ideas to help the economy included greater economic regional cooperation and the establishment of safe zone corridors.

Increased trade between the United States and Albania continues to be one of Ambassador Kim's and AmCham's top priorities. The U.S. Embassy's support for the business community will help AmCham and its members support the implementation of the necessary steps aimed at improving the business climate in Albania.

PRESIDENT OF AMCHAM IN ALBANIA, ENIO JAÇO:

OUR MEMBERS KEEPING OVER 98% OF THEIR EMPLOYEES IS POSITIVE NEWS, BUT IT CAN'T LAST FOR MUCH LONGER.

“The number of jobs lost during this period by AmCham member companies has been very low. Only 466 employees, or 1.9% of the total number of employees, have lost their jobs due to this situation. This figure is significantly lower than we expected and this is positive news. Our members value their employees as the most important asset, and this has made us feel better during this period.”

On the other hand, the president of AmCham, Jaço stressed the concern expressed in the survey by members themselves, about a second number of possible employee layoffs that could happen in the upcoming months.

“Unfortunately, this number is higher than the one of employees who have lost their jobs so far. There are about 666 people who could be laid off in the next two months, making the combined number of employees effected close to 5% of the total. This gives us concern, thus we will continue to monitor this process in the future.”

Despite difficulties encountered during these two months, none of the members of the American Chamber of Commerce in Albania has declared bankruptcy and neither is planning to do so. But according to the head of AmCham, it is possible that such a thing could happen in the future.

To mitigate this negative impact and create opportunities for business continuity, AmCham has made several proposals to the government.

“These requirements were essentially focused in providing access to capital for companies of different sizes, to provide them with liquidity during this period; postponing the payment of taxes for 2020 but also extending all unemployment payments to employees of each company. All three of these proposals were addressed by the second package of the government. Of course that while these proposals are complex, they were not addressed 100%, but this is normal.”

According to the American Chamber of Commerce, the size of the government's package aimed at helping businesses, needs to be increased. But this is expected to happen in the successive stages that the government will undertake to address the economic crisis caused by Covid-19.

Talking about the results of the members' survey, which involves information from 78% of AmCham members regarding the impact of Covid-19 on employment, Enio Jaço, head of the American Chamber of Commerce in Albania, highlighted the positive results and the resistance that the members are showing while facing the negative impact of the restrictive measures.
